

The New York Times Style Magazine

HOLIDAY
WINTER 2007

I wear
my best custom-
made little black dress for my French
Vogue
go-see.

NOW BOOKING | THE BUNNY PAGES

Nina Garcia, the TV style pundit and fashion director of Elle, describes Star Von Bunny as having "the cutest tail in the business." The makeup artist Charlotte Tilbury gushes over her perfect pink lips. And she's known to strike a pose with Jean Paul Gaultier. But Star Von Bunny is not a supermodel or starlet. She's a stuffed rabbit who is also the protagonist of "Star Von Bunny: A Model Tale" (HarperEntertainment), by Kym Canter, the creative director for the (ahem) furrier J. Mendel. In Von Bunny's quest to become a model, she dispenses diet tips ("Always eat dessert"), takes yoga lessons with Christy Turlington and even has a go-see with Carine Roitfeld at French Vogue — complete with a knockoff of an Olivier Theyskens dress made for her 14.5-inch waist. Think of it as a "Pat the Bunny" for adults who have never grown up. ALEX HAWGOOD